

Unified Communications Managed Services

The Service Level you Need, When you Need it.

Choose the service level and brand of UC that best suits your business goals.

Your Unified Communications is Mission Critical

What once was a "nice-to-have"—the ability for team members to work remotely—is now an integral part of the core corporate infrastructure and business continuity as a whole.

From continuous internal team member connectivity to, more importantly, the ability to interact with customers without disruption, UC is now the epicenter of business communications. This means that internal teams must place an even greater effort on ensuring that the UC infrastructure is continually running at peak performance—all while simultaneously maintaining all other aspects of the corporate IT infrastructure.

Why Unified Communications Managed Services

The need for professional, comprehensive Unified Communications (UC) Managed Services has skyrocketed.

It's the perfect solution to alleviate the workload placed on IT, all while ensuring business continuity and customer communications. Our Unified Communications (UC) Managed Services offering is a fully transparent co-managed relationship where our team becomes an integral part of your team. At every step, we maintain an in-depth and loyal connection, all while openly sharing our processes and best practices.

From Reactive to Proactive—We Deliver

At Stack8, we understand that every organization has completely different needs.

We have purpose-built our Unified Communications (UC) Managed Services to support you as little or as much as you need. Whether you simply need insurance, all the way through to comprehensive management and everything in between—whatever your need, we can help you with what you need now, all while helping you evolve as you grow.

It's About So Much More Than Just Expertise

For so many companies, it's easy to list all of the certifications, years in business, etc., that make up the totality of expertise. And just like any solution provider, we have years of experience, every certification, and every credential that one could request.

However, for us expertise means far more than just years of experience and credentials. Far more important are our processes; our business insights derived from working with hundreds of the world's top companies; our cross-industry expertise; and our human-centric approach when working with our customers—always placing their best interests at the forefront of every decision, project, and desired outcome.